VERMONT BOTANICAL CLUB, SUMMER MEETING.—The annual joint summer meeting of the Vermont Botanical and Bird Clubs will be held on Thursday and Friday, July 25 and 26, at Franklin, Vermont, in the Northwest corner of the State. The shores of a large pond, and the flora of three cedars bogs unknown in great measure to the botanists of the state, form the greatest attractions. It has been felt that the Botanical Club should explore some of the more unknown parts of the State before the publication of the revised Flora of Vermont. After the meeting there will be opportunity for any who wish, to join in a trip to Lake Memphramagog at Newport, and the wild lands about Island Pond in the Northeast part of the State. Persons interested in this meeting should communicate with one of the members of the joint Committee.
